

Prof. Stefano Saggini

Università di Udine, Dipartimento Politecnico di Ingegneria e Architettura

Grid integration electronic aspects

The renewable energies require flexible and efficient power conversion systems, for this reason the electronic equipment gives a significative support to the green energy development.

In this seminar the basic circuit topology used for the green power conversion will be introduced together with the electronic technology used for high power component.